BA (Hons) Business Management

BA (Hons) Business Management is a Work-Based Distance Learning (WBDL) degree which aims to bridge the gap between learning at work and learning at university.

The programme takes into account the high level of skills and learning which are demonstrated every day in the workplace and provides a degree framework to support and accredit this learning.

The BA (Hons) Business Management degree is open to all suitably qualified employees.

Underpinned by extensive research and development, this degree programme provides formal accreditation of approved prior learning and experience against the first two years of a full degree.

Students undertake a final year of study comprising of five core modules and one optional module, graduating with a BA (Hons) in Business Management.

Tailored Course - This programme has been specifically designed with work-based and distance learning students in mind, with many of the teaching staff having come from industry.

Flexible - Study whenever and wherever is most convenient.

Transferable - Recognised professionally and academically.

Minimal Disruption - Distance learning is conducted almost entirely off campus with no requirement to visit the University.

Supported - One-to-one tutor advice and expert guidance throughout the programme.

Tangible Benefits - Student work has been utilised by the employer to realise measurable operational improvements, budgetary savings, and to drive improvements in policy and strategy.

Staff Development - The WBDL programmes are designed to equip students with skills, understanding and knowledge, which can be applied directly to the work environment.

For Individuals

As prospective students will be already employed, benefits of the degree for those individuals are:

- » Academic recognition for learning you have already achieved
- » Individual learning programmes focussed on job relevant learning
- » Direct access to specialist expertise to support work-based projects and extend the scope of your activities
- » Immediate opportunities to apply theory in practice
- » Improved performance and the ability to respond to change

For Organisations

- » Improved performance and competitive edge
- » Increased motivation, confidence and creativity of the workforce
- » Immediate benefits from availability of expertise and advice on work-based projects
- » Customised programmes to suit your organisation

How You Are Assessed

The assessments are designed to address the learning outcomes of all individual modules, utilising a range of assessment methods including essays, portfolios, reflective logs and reports. There are opportunities for formative feedback to aid learning and prepare students for submission of assessments on an on-going basis throughout the programme.

When and Where

Following successful application students will be contacted via email regarding formal enrolment.

The duration of the programme spans a period of two years, and varies according to the individual's personal circumstances, accredited experience, previous learning and work commitments. Programme delivery takes place at a place and pace that suits you.

Students can commence the programme at our 3 intake points throughout the year February, May or October.
